

Bible School Program

Mitten, Boots, and the other children were very excited. All week long they had been going to Vacation Bible School. They made new friends, learned new songs and verses, and worked on crafts. Now it was Friday, the last day. Their teacher told them that on Saturday evening the mothers and daddies could come to church to see what the children had learned. Before the children left for the day, they practiced their verses and songs once more.

On the way home from Bible school, Mitten and Boots told Mother all the things they were going to do. When Daddy got home from work, they both met him at the door full of excitement about what was going to happen.

It seemed like Saturday evening would never come. Boots and Mitten could hardly wait to get to church. As they waited in their classroom, the children sang their songs and said their verses once again. “Line up, children,” said their teacher. “It is time to get ready to go.” First, the teenagers walked past, then some other children, and then it was time for Mitten and Boots’s class to get in line. The children could hear the piano playing and the older children singing, “Onward Christian Soldiers.” The lady played the piano until all the children were in their seats.

Then Mitten and Boots’s teacher told her class to stand up. They all walked up on the platform and stood straight and tall. They sang a song, said their verses, and showed some of the things they had made. Pastor Smith called their names and gave them a special award called a certificate for being in Vacation Bible School all week. Then their teacher took them back to their room for cookies and juice.

When Mother and Daddy came to pick up the children, they said, “You all did such a good job!”

“I like to come to God’s house and learn about Him,” said Boots.

“So do I,” said Mitten, as they all walked to the nursery to pick up Kitty.
